

KU`ULEI STOCKMAN

EHCC CHIEF EXECUTIVE OFFICER

---

ABOUT

Of Native Hawaiian ancestry, Ku`ulei was born and raised on O`ahu and graduated from the Kamehameha School for Girls in Honolulu. She received her BA degree in Education from Albion College, MI. She spent most of her career as President of Travelcorp, a travel agency that designed and executed deluxe group incentive travel programs to international destinations.

In 2011, Ku`ulei joined Pacific Center for Economic Development as its Director of Native Hawaiian Cultural Resources in the D.C. area. Five years later, she took a position at the Office of Hawaiian Affairs in Washington, D.C. In 2018, Ku`ulei joined Na Ali`i in Arlington, VA, which is part of Nakupuna Foundation Family of Companies, a non-profit organization headquartered in Honolulu, HI.

An active Hawaiian cultural community leader, Ku`ulei co-founded/co-organized three 501(c)(3) non-profit Native Hawaiian cultural schools/organizations in the Washington, D.C. area. She is currently Director of Community Engagement with E Ala E Hawaiian Cultural Center in the Northern Virginia area. She is a former president of the Hawai`i State Society of Washington, D.C., former 1st Vice President of Ke Ali`i Maka`āinana Hawaiian Civic Club of Washington, D.C., and a member of the Kamehameha Schools East Coast Alumni Association. Ku`ulei is an avid pool player and enjoys spending time with her two furry Siamese buddies, Hōkū and Kekoa.